I am honored to serve as Chair of the Southwest Harbor Public Library (SWHPL) Board of Trustees. Whenever I mention the Library in conversation, the response is invariably something along the lines of “I love the Southwest Harbor Library! It’s such a warm, friendly place.” And so it is, thanks to the wonderful staff, volunteers, patrons, and donors: in other words, all of you.

SWHPL is lucky to have so much community involvement and we want to acknowledge the many ways in which the community supports our library. In 2019, we decided to start a program to recognize the businesses that support the Library. Our Business Partners provide funding or services to the Library. Many have for years supplied rewards for the children who participate in the Summer Reading Program. Others give the Library discounts on purchases or services. All deserve to have your support as they support the Library. Check out the list on page 5.

Along with the idea of recognizing our Business Partners in our Annual Report, the Library has decided to acknowledge the contributions of the many individuals who support the library by including their names in next year’s Annual Report. This is a change that we hope you will embrace. The Board and staff feel strongly that those who support the Library deserve recognition. Next year’s Annual Report will include a list of donors to the Endowment, the Annual Appeal, and memorial gifts; artists who donate part or all of the proceeds from the August Art Auction; and others who support the library in so many other ways. We wouldn’t be able to do what we do without all of you. Please check the donation envelope to make sure your name is listed as you would like, or indicate that you prefer to remain anonymous.

Throughout 2020, we will be celebrating our Quasquicentennial – that’s a wonderful word for a 125th anniversary. This year marks SWHPL’s 125th year in our own building on Main Street. Southwest Harbor’s first library actually started in 1884, when one enterprising woman of the town collected discarded books from summer hotels and put them in the drug store for the year-round residents to borrow over the winter. Soon there were too many books for the shelf in the drug store and the nascent library moved to a different building. Then a group of like-minded women started collecting money so Southwest Harbor could have a proper Library. Thanks to their efforts and their “dollar socials,” the building that now houses the Holmes Room was built at a cost of $898.00 and opened in 1895. You can read more about the Library’s history on the Library website. Just click on About Us and Library History. Watch for special events – and repeated appearances of birthday cake – throughout the year. I hope to see you there.

Looking back on 2019, those of us who dedicate a significant part of our time to the Library can feel a sense of accomplishment and satisfaction. As the statistics included elsewhere in this report indicate, we met and exceeded our fundraising goals. You, the Library patrons, participated in Library events in record numbers. Erich Reed completed his first full year as Director, continuing and expanding existing Library programs and putting his own touch on the running of the Library. Children’s programs flourished. The SWHPL Digital Archive is now part of a larger archive with many members, all built on the platform developed for SWHPL (see page 4).

This is a big year for the Library—we have been at our Main Street location for 125 years! We are grateful to have had so much community support over these years, and we are immensely grateful for your continued support this past year. To give thanks to the community, we had been planning an ambitious slate of programs, some of which will have to be modified to make sure we obey the governor’s and Maine CDC guidelines to keep us all safe and to prevent the spread of the coronavirus.

We hope that you are all safe and well and that you are weathering these difficult times with a good book and frequent calls and emails to loved ones. Our doors have been closed to the public since March 16th. That was a difficult decision, albeit though the prudent one, to safeguard the health of our patrons and employees. We look forward to the day when we can safely open our doors and greet you in person. In the meantime, we are focused on continuing and broadening our services and maintaining our connections with you.

I’d like to provide you with an update on some of the highlights of the past year. Our Library has been very busy with record numbers of programs (566) and attendees (11,763). Our winter afternoon teas and accompanying musical performances were, as always, well-attended and much appreciated. Our circulation numbers rival our historic highs, an unusual feat in a world where print circulation has been declining over the past ten years. Our children’s librarian, Susan Plimpton, is imbued with a fierce determination to ward off the summer learning loss that many children experience. Her innovative summer programs are always free to participants and fully subscribed. Indeed, our children’s room collection is one of the busiest sections in all of Maine libraries in July.

We have greatly expanded our digital content in the form of ebooks and audiobooks that you can readily access via the cloudLibrary. Titles that you might have waited a year for previously may be available in a few weeks, or even available today! Please check out the selection on our website. If you haven’t done so recently, do visit our Digital Archive. (swlilibary.net) It is a good way to learn about the history of our communities and our people, especially during this historic Maine Bicentennial. You may discover some new treasures! Just this week, Morgan, the granddaughter of a woman who lived on the island, shared with us the unexpected gift she found through the Digital Archive—a photo of her grandmother. “This is the most meaningful picture to me in the world. It once graced my Grand’s dresser at her nursing home and when she passed, I requested that I have the framed picture, but I was heartbroken when I learned that it was lost in the shuffle of her items. I thought I would never see it again, until today.”

Stay safe and well. We hope to see you soon. In the meantime, we are strengthening our library services and focusing on new ways to serve the community. We are here at the other end of the phone or email if we can help. Please do not hesitate to reach out.

With best wishes,
Erich Reed, Director
The Library is excited to announce that 14 of the museums, libraries, and historical societies on Mount Desert Island have begun a collaborative project to share and provide online access to their vast and varying collections of images, maps, and documents which preserve our island’s rich history. The project involves building “digital bridges” that will connect the collections and allow anyone having internet access the ability to search all of them from a single website. The “brick and mortar” of these bridges is none other than the Digital Archive software which originated at the Southwest Harbor Public Library.

The work will be funded by The History Trust, a consortium of 11 MDI cultural heritage organizations, which recently hired Library trustee George Soules of AvantLogic Corporation to make this sharing vision a reality. AvantLogic developed the software for the Library in 2016 and then made it freely available as open source. Currently, six MDI organizations use the Digital Archive to share more than 22,000 items. At the completion of the year-long “bridge” project, eight more organizations will be sharing their collections bringing the total to 14. Other organizations will be welcome to join in the future.

The photos on this page are of actual bridges from the Library’s Digital Archive. With immense gratitude to Phoebe Miliken’s generous support toward the publication of this vital history, the Library presents The Stanleys of Cranberry Isles . . . and Other Colorful Characters.

“Historian, Genealogist, Musician, Boat Builder, Author, Raconteur — there is only one Ralph Stanley. Ralph bears many titles and awards, but for the Southwest Harbor Library he is, most of all, a friend . . . This book [The Stanleys of Cranberry Isles . . . and Other Colorful Characters] is Ralph’s own story, based on his own research and in his own words.”

IN MEMORIAM — CHARLES MORRILL

On January 16th of this year the Library lost a beloved and dedicated Library friend, Charles Morrill. As a trustee, Charlie helped launch the library’s major renovation and addition in 2008, seen here cutting the ribbon at the 2008 dedication. He served on various committees for many years in his wise and gentle way, his presence often a balm—helping smooth out rough spots of all sorts. More recently, his visits to the library were accompanied by a joke or comic cut-out to share, always with a bright sparkle of mischief in his eye.

A note of interest to genealogists and library friends. When Charles Barrett Morrill cut the ribbon at the dedication of the new addition in 2008, he was opening a new door to the library that had been designed, in 1896, by his ninth cousin once removed, Eleazer Bartlett Homer!
Development Report

The Southwest Harbor Public Library serves as the center of our community. We are open 302 days (2,444 hours) each year. We welcome everyone through our doors and to our many library programs. Our Library inspires and supports lifelong learning. We are a quiet non-profit business mentor.

The annual giving program recorded an increase in the number of gifts, number of new donors, and the total amount of contributions. We are very appreciative of this growing support.

The Library needs your support in order to continue our mission of service. If you are a past donor, we thank you for your generosity. We welcome and need new donors, both individuals, and businesses. There are many giving opportunities available to you, so please consider donating to the Southwest Harbor Public Library in 2020 and beyond. A donation invitation is attached to this Annual Report.

The Library Board of Trustees is profoundly grateful to all donors and volunteers who make our continued service to the community possible, now and into the future. With your generous support, we will continue to be a cherished resource for our community.

MEET A TRUSTEE

Dennis started his career as a teacher/naturalist and taught outdoor education to students in grades 1-12 and professional development for teachers. He later served as the chief executive of the Natural History Museum of The Academy of Natural Sciences in Philadelphia, Cranbrook Institute in Bloomfield Hills, Michigan, St. Louis Science Center, and for nearly 20 years The Franklin Institute in Philadelphia. After leaving The Franklin Institute, he taught Museum Leadership at Drexel University. Dennis holds a B.S. from University of Michigan and a PhD from Case Western Reserve University.

Dennis Wint has had a love affair with Maine for more than 50 years. For several summers, he was the director of a program for high school students to learn about Maine island ecology.

Dennis has three children and three grandchildren. He and his partner Debra Bjornard live in Southwest Harbor. They are dedicated volunteers at the Southwest Harbor Public Library. Dennis also volunteers with SCORE as a non-profit business mentor.

Treasurer’s Report

OPERATING BUDGET — A combination of generous donations, increased endowment value, the continuing Town contribution, successful fund-raisers, and operational changes made by the Director brought us back into the black in 2019.

ENDOWMENT — A major rise in stock market values increased the value of our Endowment by $4,000,000, even after making a 4% withdrawal of $178,172 for operations. Despite the recent drop in stock values due to the pandemic, returns from the endowment will continue to be a very important part of our income. We are thankful for all who have donated to this fund. We would not be able to support the current level of operations without your help.

Volunteers Report

We estimate that in 2019 there were approximately 150 wonderful individuals who contributed 3,435 hours to the Library. These volunteers shelved over 40,000 books; processed almost 7,000 items from other libraries through the interlibrary loan program, and prepared 2,800 new items to add to the collection. They maintained the building and gardens; supported children’s programs such as Story Time, Reader Dog, and Cafe Book, and managed our website. Many of our fundraising events would not be possible without their help. They served tea and passed homemade cookies and provided music at our winter teas; and they served on our Board of Trustees helping to keep the Library a vital part of the community all year long. Our volunteers are our most precious resource, and we can’t thank them enough.

1 Deborah Bjornard and Diane Phipps prepare colorful delights for a Harbor House Children’s Center Valentine’s Tea
2 Amidst treasures, Nancy Backwelder clears, sorts, and prices donated items in preparation for the Mother’s Day Sale, a Children’s fundraiser offering prior-to-sell items for children to gift their mothers and loved ones.
3 Kathy Saunders, an energetic Library Tea Volunteer, arrives at the Library’s Thank You Volunteer Breakfast hosted at the Common Good Soup Kitchen.
4 Monty Evans and Holly Jenkins-Evans take a break from their year-round work in the Library’s basement sorting donated books for upcoming sales.
5 Our gardener of delight, Betsey Hofmann, works her magic with the ivy and farsy fan flowers (Scaevola aemula) in the Library’s stone wall.
