

Abstract Ideas, Art You Can Imagine

SOUTHWEST HARBOR – Abstract artist, Greg Mason Burns, will have his work on display for the month of November at the Southwest Harbor Public Library. He will give a reception and talk about his art Wednesday evening, November 1, 5:30 – 7:30.

Not all abstract art is unrecognizable. In fact, quite a bit can look representative. What matters is the process behind the work, and with this show and artist talk, Burns will explain his influences and artistic process, and why the abstract is far more important to him than representation.

All are invited to the reception and talk. For more information, call the Library at 244-7065.
